WILL WIN ON TARIFF ISSUE.

EX-VICE PRESIDENT ADLAI STEVENSON predicts that the Democrats will win next time on the tariff issue. There is an opportunity for a strong fight on those lines but the party cannot win on any line unless it reforms its shattered ranks. The rank and file, anxious for an opportunity to overthrow the entrenched forces of Republicanism, are eager for something that shall promise strong leadership and united action.

The tariff for the Philippines has promised an opportunity for aggressive action on the part of the Democrats but not much has been done. The tendency has been to devote the opposition to the imperialism involved in the measure and to overlook or neglect the unjust details of the bill itself. Opposition to a protectionist policy of the administration is strong in the party and is growing stronger every day among the people of the country generally. The issue has been well covered. It was the important thing in the last campaign and there is nothing new to be said on the general principles involved.

It seems to us that with the growing dissatisfaction among business men as indicated by our eastern exchanges, and especially in the middle west, the increasing desire for reciprocity to aid trade with foreign nations, the entention of American Commerce which proves the uselessness of a tariff on some lines, and the unity of Democrats in favor of a lower tariff, that that issue should be pressed to the front as forcibly as possible.

The time must come when all Democrats will agree on matters to be advocated, and leaders to advocate them, when they will look to the future instead of the past. Looking backward is useless. The gold men say the silver men ruined the party. The silver men truthfully declare that the party was ruined before 1896 and point to the State and congressional elections to prove their assertion. They must both admit that the panic of 1896, although of Republican origin, was a load that no administration could have carried and that Democratic defeat was inevitable in 1896.

The silver men it is true got control and the party was defeated. There is no doubt, however, that it would have been worse defeated if the gold men had secured control of the national convention. The defeats we have suffered have not been the fault of issues or of leaders, but of conditions. We have suffered from conditions. Now we may profit by them. The sordid, selfish, tyrannical policy of the Republican party has produced aversion and disgust. The foreign trade that has been built up under the Dingley tariff is but a small part of what we may gain if we make trade conditions easier. Business men know this. The people are beginning to realize it. The Republican party refuses to see it. With a united Democracy and a strong leader the elect on of 1924 may fulfill the prediction of Mr. Stevenson.

EVIDENTLY HAS A POLICY.

WHEN President Roosevelt was sworn in he announced that he was going to carry out the policy of his lamented predecessor. All of the Republicans with one accord shouted "good boy." A few days after McKinley's death it was given out that Roosevelt was going to retain the McKinley cabinet. But it appears that the new president's intentions lasted about as long as a young widow's determination not to marry again. It is pretty plain that Roosevelt has a policy of his own, and that policy likes a good deal of being the McKinley policy. He is not to be misled by having a policy of his own, but rather should be praised for it. So far as the cabinet is concerned, Smith has gone, Clegg's successor is appointed, and it is rumored that Long and Hitchcock are going and under circumstances that suggest pressure and high pressure at that, for nothing less than the highest kind of pressure would make Long let loose of his job.

POINTED POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS.

The postal deficit might be overcome by compelling the railroads to haul the mail at reasonable rates.

Senator Bayne continues to act on the asumption that he can write our foreign complications to death.

Poet Laureate Austin has written some more verses. In view of the facts he is slightly mixed in his metaphors.

Quite a number of Republican politicians who possess plans for an elastic currency also possess elastic consciences.

J. Pierpont Morgan is now engaged in organizing a $50,000,000 electric company. The public will doubtless be shocked.

Mr. Forsker seems to have equipped himself with a few choice lie preservers before plunging into the Ohio legislative fray.

If George III. were still alive he doubtless would study Republican politics for a few hours and then demand a vindication.

By keeping in striking distance of British supply trains the Boers manage to pursue uninterrupted connection with their base of supplies.

Mr. Havemeyer called the tariff "the mother of trusts." Charles Francis Adams has a better name. He calls the high tariff "the bastille of the trusts."

An order issued by a judge who is elected by the people is very easily overruled by a judge who is appointed because of a pull with the corporations.

If imperialism is right the heirs of the men who owned the tea dumped into Boston harbor something over a century ago should file a claim for damages.

IF THE report proves true that the sugar trust is storing great quantities of sugar, intending to flood the market at the proper time to destroy the beet sugar interest, it will not help the trust in its attempt to have Cuban sugar admitted free of duty. The beet sugar interests are now opposing that plan, for they say it will ruin them. The trust having got control of Cuban sugar, wants the tariff ignored. If the trust is trying to crush out a business rival through the power it has acquired, there will be little popular favor of a plan to give it greater power.

GOV. SHAW the new secretary of the treasury has six toes on each foot. A Chicago scientist lately predicted that the men of the future will have only four toes. Mr. Shaw is developing the wrong way.

OLDEN DAYS IN NEWLANDS IRRIGATION BILL

A Galenaite Recounts an Incident of the Dim and Misty Past.

Editor Journal: Among the many exciting events that occurred at Galena in 1864 was one that happened to a young man who had been raised in a community of prohibitionists and who thought Galena would be a fine town for a man of steady habits to acquire wealth.

The young prohibitionist opened a store with candles, nuts, pies and cakes as the staple article exposed for sale. The first day's business exceeded his most sanguine expectation, dried apple pies that did not cost him more than twenty cents each sold readily for fifty cents and the profits on the other wares were equally large. At the close of the third day he began to feel that his fortune was an assured fact and was only a question of time.

The inhabitants of Galena at that time were not very temperate and as a rule did not have much use for a prohibitionist. And three days was as long as the good people of the town could stand the new method of business adopted by this prohibitionist, and something of an effective nature had to be done. A citizen's meeting was held in the saloon near Fred Stadnoller's store and strong resolutions were passed denouncing the business methods of this young man and would be allowed to do business in Galena unless he recognized the patronage of the saloons.

A collection was taken up at the meeting to get funds to defray the expense of enforcing the resolutions. A keg of powder was purchased and about 11 o'clock at night willing hands went to work and soon had an excavation at the front end of the store. The keg of powder was put in place and covered with earth and gravel and the proper precautions taken to connect the fuse with the powder. In the meantime the prohibitionist was sound asleep in a room at the rear of the store. About midnight the fuse was ignited and a terrific explosion soon followed.

The concussion from the explosion created an earthquake in the immediate vicinity of the store and the front end of the building was a complete wreck. The show cases containing the pies and cakes and the candy jars were totally demolished. The shock was sufficient at the rear end of the store to throw the young man from his cot out aside from a few bruises and a frightful scare he suffered no severe bodily harm.

His business and visions of future wealth were a total wreck. He took him and like the Arab of old he buried his tent and went silently away. And no prohibitionist was ever known to succeed in business at Galena after that date.

Chance to Acquire Treasury Stock.

You should buy some treasury stock in the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company of Colorado Springs, thereby assisting in the development of the West and Peavine districts and help swell the population of Reno and vicinity.

The Company is capitalized for $200,000, in 2,000,000 non-assessable shares. The Company, as you all know, is working, and the prospects of getting a mine are good. Every trustee connected with the Company is working to make this one of the best paying properties in Nevada.

The Company offers only a small block of treasury stock at the low price of five cents per share.

Come in and help us make it worth a dollar a share.

University Extension Work.

Last evening the Freshman class in mining and metallurgy received its first lecture and instruction in the work pertaining to the degree of Mining Engineer. A good representation of students was in attendance and they entered into the work with a will. Faking up for the present, algebra, free-hand drawing and chemistry, says the Report.

After these studies have been completed the rest of the course will be taken up, which comprises instruction in mechanical drawing, geometry, trigonometry, surveying, analytical chemistry, physics, assaying, blow-piping, crystallography, mineralogy and geology.

Among the students in the new class are Daniel R. Sullivan, John W. Kelson, Joseph J. Kernan, Geo. H. Drysdale, J. Seemith, W. M. Rogers, W. A. Burns, J. H. Conway, James H. Brown, R. B. Royer, John Ross, Thomas Sullivan, E. J. McManus, H. Hunter, S. Brainin, Jack W. Richards, E. Lichtenberg and Fred C. Morris.

The National Homemaker, a newspaper devoted to the interests of American settlers and home-builders, publishes editorially the following comments upon the irrigation bill introduced by Mr. Newlands:

The statement is not gainsaid by those who are familiar with legislative affairs at Washington that Congress will take some definite action this winter on the irrigation question. The discussion of the subject last year was lengthy and varied, but it was the shortest session of Congress, and those who were opposed or were not actively favorable, were enabled to push it aside in the press of other established measures. The discussions, however, developed great strength for the question, and the present Congress will have to meet the issue and legislate for it.

The plan that is probably the most feasible for a beginning is that embodied in a bill originally introduced by Mr. Newlands, of Nevada, which provides that the proceeds from the sales of public lands in the arid States and Territories (amounting to $2,000,000 or $3,000,000), shall constitute an arid land reclamation fund to be used for the construction by the National Government of irrigation works, and that the lands so brought under irrigation shall be sold in small farm tracts to actual settlers at the pro rata cost of the irrigation construction. The money thus received would be turned back into the fund to be immediately used over again, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior.

By this method, the Government would be no loser by the transaction, while irrigated land could be offered to settlers at low cost, insuring its quick settlement.

Under the bill, the land selected for reclamation would be immediately reserved by the Government to prevent its being located or taken up by speculators. The money would be spent by the Secretary of the Interior and could not get into the hands of the political jobbers of the various States.

The operation of this Handsbrough-Newlands bill, with its gradually increasing fund from the sale of arid lands, and the constant turning over of this money as it was received from the sale of reclaimed lands, would be to slowly develop great tracts of arid Government land adjacent to suitable reservoir sites, and to settle them in small but productive farms with a perpetual water supply to which the settlers would have as perfect a title as to their land.

How Nevada Gets Buncoed.

Whatever Nevada wants, whatever Nevada deserves, she always gets it—in the neck. People from the outside say that as a mining State she is played out, and that as an agricultural proposition she is a lobster. There are two things which Nevada produces, however, which are in demand on the western slopes of the mountains, and those are potatoes and butter. But the swindling California merchants conspire to deprive her of whatever small benefit she might derive from her reputation as a producer of those articles. M. Quillet, the Dayton rancher, who was in town Saturday, tells how it is done:

"When I was in San Francisco some months ago," said Mr. Quillet, "I met the manager of the Palace Hotel who asked me what was the matter with the Dayton potato. He said he had not seen a good one in months. I asked him where he bought his potatoes and he mentioned a house down in the wholesale district. I went down there and found an establishment which had bought ten sacks of me a short time before. They had my ten sacks of potatoes all right, and piled around them were 2,000 sacks from Oregon, but everyone of them were labeled Dayton, Nevada. Most of the Oregon potatoes were half rotten and the sound ones were not to be compared with the Nevada article. Since then the Palace Hotel buys its potatoes direct from me."—Chronicle.
